Photographing weddings has always been a privilege and honor to me. Being invited in on one of the most important days of other peoples' lives, and having the opportunity to not only be there, but to record that story for years to come, is not only fulfilling as a photographer, but also rewarding in the relationships that I get to build with my clients.

With a background in documentary work, I like to approach every wedding as a story. As with all stories, weddings have a beginning, a middle and an end, and I like to capture all of them to be able to tell the whole story, so I shoot all day, from the prep to the exit.

I work in a combination of digital photography and analogue capture, using a variety of vintage and new film cameras along with my digital ones to record the day in a way that is both classic and timeless.

Every wedding booked with me comes with a high-resolution disk of your images, allowing you to make your own reprints. From there, you can book packages, add credits and custom build your own coverage that best fits your wedding.
